Mercedes-Benz

Athlete, aesthete.

The SL-Class is an icon among Mercedes-Benz sports cars which has been causing a stir on roads the world over since 1952. The latest generation of this sports car legend is even more athletic and agile than ever – with an all-aluminium body, an inspirational engine lineup and three suspension variants which can be adjusted from extremely sporty to superbly comfortable. Its striking roadster design excitingly reinterprets the classic design idiom of the SL-Class, while the interior cossets the occupants with the finest materials and luxurious details.

SL-Class

Proves that you have no need to prove anything any more.

There is no greater challenge than that of repeatedly surpassing oneself. But few have risen to it more successfully over the years than the SL-Class. Its BlueDIRECT V6 engines are more powerful – and economical – than ever, thereby proving that it is possible to deliver higher performance and efficiency with a smaller displacement. The SL-Class just keeps on surpassing itself. Even at the filling station.

A black and white photograph showing the interior of a Mercedes-Benz SL-Class. The focus is on the front passenger seat, which is upholstered in a light-colored, possibly leather or fabric, material. The seat is shown from a three-quarter angle, highlighting its contours and the headrest. To the right, the dark door panel of the car is visible, featuring a circular vent and a window control panel. The background is slightly blurred, showing the road outside through the car's windows.

Nothing less than luxury.

The SL-Class embodies a design philosophy which rejects the everyday in favour of the exclusive. There are no bass loudspeakers to be found in the doors, for example. Instead, the sound is emitted from the side members of the front section of the car. The vehicle body itself becomes a resonance cavity – an innovative and acoustically impressive design solution, which turns the interior into a concert hall.

Forged in a fire that never goes out: passion.

Over sixty years ago a car was created that would go on to receive the title "Sports Car of the Century". It was the legendary 300 SL, the model that established a unique tradition of sports cars. Today's SL-Class generation is systematically building on and extending this tradition. The legend lives on.
