CLS-Class Shooting Brake

How do you describe something new? How do you put an unseen form into words? How do you describe something new? How do you put an unseen form into words? How do you christen a racy sports car with a generous amount of space? What do you call a car that has no peer? Allow us to introduce: the CLS-Class Shooting Brake.

Adds a new term to the design idiom.

Steps into the future, now.

Does anyone need luxury? Does anyone need style? Does anyone need a refined taste which is reflected in fine trim? Does anyone need exclusive materials? Yes, they do. After the first drive at the latest.

A silver Mercedes-Benz CLS-Class Shooting Brake is parked on a wet cobblestone street at night. The car is positioned on the left side of the frame, with its rear and side profile visible. The background features a large, dark brick building with arched doorways and windows. The scene is illuminated by a cool, blue-toned light, creating a moody and sophisticated atmosphere. The wet pavement reflects the car and the ambient light.

You don't herald in a new era with a fashion fad.

The CLS-Class Shooting Brake provides a perfect combination of sportiness, top quality and individualistic style: innovative design is emphasized by broad shoulder lines and relatively lower side windows. The new style is further highlighted by a series of attractive color schemes.
