1997 Miniatures

Precision down to the very last detail.

BMW miniatures are not simply based on the original. They are exact, small-scale replicas, precisely modelled on the life-size versions. The precision of the detail is astonishing: inside mirror, radiator grilles with the typical BMW emblem and amazingly realistic alloy wheels. And on some models the doors and engine cover also open... It is this level of detail and other subtleties that make all the fascination of a BMW miniature. Obviously, such accurate detailing is no coincidence. It takes absolute precision during manufacture, an area where the use of computers is already widespread. Take an example: Milling machines use the CAD data of the original to produce a reduced model on a scale of 1:14.5. The blank is then used to manufacture a steel mould using an erosion process with 15,000V - one for every part.

The parts themselves are injection moulded, then painted, lettered and assembled, partly by hand. After a final quality control, the miniature is completed: a real BMW in every respect, just much, much smaller.

And for the enthusiastic collector, far more than the sum of its parts. Browse through the next few pages and see for yourself; you, too, may well become a BMW miniature enthusiast.
