

"Inspiration for the World"

CHRYSLER AKINO

A Solution for Future Transportation

Conceived by Designer Akino Tsuchiya of the Chrysler Group's Pacifica Design Studios in Carlsbad, California, this futuristic concept provides a glimpse of tomorrow by exploring new possibilities beyond the boundaries of traditional automotive design. As Joe Eberhardt, Executive Vice President Global Sales, Marketing and Service explains: "The fresh thinking and diversity in our design team enables us to develop vehicles that answer the specific demands of the varied world markets in which we operate."

An Oasis of Comfort

Akino welcomes five with a single door on the driver's side and two passenger side doors that open in opposite directions. This easy-access design invites guests to get comfortable in a "booth like" rear seat and enjoy homestyle touches that include bamboo flooring, an area rug, lighting sconces and throw pillows.

A Functional Work of Art

Nimble and highly efficient, Akino further demonstrates its environmental awareness by utilizing a variety of natural and recyclable synthetic materials. Unique side glass features an unusual graphic breakup while the rear window receives a distinctive texture treatment to provide an added sense of privacy and comfort.
