Mopar Diagnostic System allows Chrysler-Plymouth dealership technicians to use today's most sophisticated computer diagnostic procedures to quickly and accurately service your Plymouth Acclaim. (Late availability.)

Plymouth's comprehensive anticorrosion measures begin with extensive use of corrosion-fighting galvanized steel in body panels.

A. Zinc-iron alloy-coated steel is zinc-phosphated as part of a nine-step pre-treatment which cleans and prepares the metal surface.

B. The entire body is fully immersed in a coating of corrosion-resistant epoxy electrocoat primer.

C. A two-stage base color coat is applied.

D. Two coats of clear are applied wet-on-wet over the base coat for an environmentally resistant mirror finish. (All body panels exposed to corrosives, except roof, are two-side galvanized/galvannealed.)

E. An antichip coating protects the lower bodyside against stone damage.
